Crisis center reopens after renovation

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

After being closed for three and one-half months for renovation, the Phoenix Crisis Center has reopened with a new, fresh look.

The facility, which offers a home to women and children who are victims of abuse, held an open house for six hours Wednesday to display the changes.

The seven-year-old center has been housed in a spacious former residence in Granite City for nearly six years. After serving 1,700 clients, the home was deemed to be in need of improvement. It has 10 bedrooms and two and one-half baths, and can house 17 clients at one time.

Nearly $50,000 was spent on the renovations. The major structural repairs were made possible by a $38,000 grant from the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs. Other funds were provided by community donors.

"We still maintained 24-hour service to women during the renovation," Phoenix Crisis Center Director Carol Lee Chiappa said. "But now we can offer them a home to be proud of."

The work included plumbing and stairway improvements, along with two new furnaces and a new air conditioner. Painting, wallpapering, carpeting and new furniture also were included.

Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine was impressed with the improvements.

"I'm here today because this center is essential to the protection of women and children," Haine said.

"My office sends out most of the orders of

Andria asks for data on Eticam

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Kathy Andria says her statutory right to public information has been violated by the city of Granite City.

Andria told the City Council Tuesday night that the city staff has refused to provide her with public documents requested under the Illinois Freedom of Information Act (FOI) and has established excessive fees for information it has provided.

Andria is seeking all information regarding a proposed Eticam hazardous-wastewater treatment plant to be located in Granite City. She has been critical of the way the city has handled the Eticam issue.

"If the city has nothing to hide (regarding Eticam), why is it denying access to the information?" Andria asked.

'We don't want to withhold any information about Eticam.'

Mayor Von Dee Cruse said the city has nothing to hide regarding its handling of the Eticam issue.

He said a number of FOI requests have been received by the city in the past week, on varying topics.

Paper plate plea Governor doesn't greet groups protesting cuts

By Christopher Knight
Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD — About 50 people from East St. Louis, Granite City, Venice and surrounding towns came to Springfield to try to teach Gov. Jim Edgar about being poor.

Those who gathered in the Capitol didn't personally meet the chief executive, but they did cause a stir outside his office.

"I'm here because of the cuts in Illinois. I think lawmakers have cut enough," said the Rev. Lucious Lawrence of Madison as others who traveled with him in vans and buses surrounded the large glass wall of Edgar's second-floor office.

"We're trying to oppose the General Assembly's cuts. We prefer to have them work to try to get people jobs," said the Rev. John Williams of Venice.

"We want to let the people (See PROTEST, Page 3A)

Minor damage reported in hospital storage area fire

A fire in a basement storage area at St. Elizabeth Medical Center at 11:12 a.m. Wednesday left "a mess and quite a bit of smoke," but caused no injuries and only a small amount of damage.

S. Paige Patterson, an SEMC public affairs specialist, said there were no injuries in the fire.

She said the fire was located in the basement under the Pascual Hall meeting room and was well away from patient-care areas.

Granite City Fire Chief Jerry Wallace said the fire, in a locked document storage vault, appeared to have been caused by a carelessly discarded cigarette.

"All possible accidental causes were eliminated, so what's left is negligence," Wallace said.

The fire was immediately extinguished when the automatic sprinkler system activated, Patterson said.

Wallace said Granite City firefighters were on the scene for about an hour and a half to remove the "heavy smoke" from the area.

No dollar amount had been determined for the damage, but Patterson said the damage was limited to "storage-type items" and the fire caused no structural damage.

'Significant deficiencies' continue at community college

By Christopher Knight
Correspondent

State Community College of East St. Louis continues to have "significant deficiencies," such as losing track of property, buying an ineffective computer system, and overpaying faculty by nearly 100 percent.

In a state audit released Monday, officials were highly critical of "serious" operations errors that cause new problems and fail to correct old ones, some of which auditors have repeatedly questioned since 1987.

"We are especially concerned with the college's past history of failing to correct prior audit findings," wrote Don W. Templeman, state acting auditor general.

Auditors cited 47 deficiencies for the fiscal year that ended June 30, compared with 64 problems cited last year. Even worse were the 37 repeated deficiencies, compared with 24 last year. "Twenty of the findings represent weakness in internal control systems that 'hinder the routine detection and correction of' errors and involve 'most areas of the college's operations," the audit said.

The audit said 27 previous recommendations were implemented or not repeated in the past year.

State Community College president Cynthia Pace accepted the findings and agreed to correct them, the audit said. Pace couldn't be reached Monday.

Warrington Hudlin, president of the board of directors, said he is reluctant to comment about the audit until a decision has been made on his request to be replaced on the board. He added that he has voiced concerns to several officials about problems with college operations.

The audit divided its top findings into two areas, property control and management.

Several management decisions were "either wasteful or detrimental to the college," the report said.

Such decisions include a failure to enforce instructors' evaluations, which led to evaluations being filed late or not being signed. "One evaluator signed the name of the instructors he was supposed to evaluate," the report said.

The college bought a new computer system in January 1991, but staff were unable to operate it and "had to turn to a consultant to determine if the system could be made to work."

The college failed to use reasonable salary reviews, which led to paying faculty $1,000 per course credit hour for summer school. Other community colleges average $527, the report said. Also cited was an unnamed faculty member who was awarded $3,460 in release time to write a grant proposal.

Problems with property control included a failure to fix inventory problems, which caused reports to the state Central Management Services to be untimely and inaccurate.

Bookstore record keeping also was inadequate, the report said. Inventory lists weren't maintained and many books listed as on hand didn't exist.

The college didn't maintain any records for library books during the audit year, the report said, which means it had no records of required purchases or disposals of books. This deficiency prevented auditors from reporting an unqualified overall financial statement for the college.

New program emphasizes fire safety

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

In the last year and a half, Granite City has experienced eight fire fatalities and 22 fire-related injuries to the civilian population as well as 19 injuries to firefighters.

An estimated $1.28 million of residential property was destroyed during that time, Fire Chief Jerry Wallace said.

In response to these figures, the Granite City Fire Department is implementing a new safety program emphasizing education and prevention.

The program is designed to impact every portion of the population; but it especially targets school-age children and senior citizens, Wallace said.

The program, Fire Information Resource Education and Safety Awareness For Everyone (Operation FIRESAFE, for short), is designed to emphasize the importance of early warning devices and to teach the correct safety procedures in the event of a fire.

To implement the program, the department will purchase remote-controlled robots and construct a portable life-safety house.

The apparatus will be used in demonstration programs at all 15 public and private elementary schools in the city, at senior gatherings, at fraternal and civic organization meetings and at other community activities.

The robots, Pluggie the Fire Truck, are equipped with two-way communication equipment.

In other communities that utilize them, Wallace said, these devices have proven effective in maintaining children's interest.

The life-safety house furnishes the opportunity to simulate smoke and fire conditions that exist when there is a fire.

Participants will be able to experience first-hand and practice fire drills under simulated conditions, Wallace said.

In addition to the demonstration, Operation FIRESAFE includes a voluntary home inspection program, whereby residents may request firefighters to come into their homes and make safety suggestions.

Other facets of the program include the utilization of community access cable television and newspapers to provide regular tips on fire prevention, safety and education; and the Juvenile Firesetter program implemented two years ago with the cooperation of the Madison County Juvenile Justice Board and the Child Development Center at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

The program will cost about $40,000 to implement. AMVETS Post 51 had donated $1,000, with the AMVETS ladies' auxiliary adding another $500. Businesses have donated funds or are committed to do so, Wallace said.

Labor for construction of the life-safety house has been donated by local unions through apprenticeship programs, the chief said.

Persons wishing to contribute to the program may send donations to: Operation FIRESAFE, attention Fire Chief, 2300 Madison Ave., Granite City, Ill. 62040. Wallace anticipates implementation of the program at the start of the 1992-93 school year.

Bill would require waiting period

By Christopher Knight
Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Federation for Right to Life pledged support Tuesday for a bill requiring women to return home and wait three days after visiting a doctor for an abortion.

Women could bring criminal charges against doctors who perform abortions without letting them wait three days or not offering significant information about having a baby.

"I feel it's a tragedy that women aren't given information to make informative decisions. It's not only the babies who are the victims, but the women are, too," said Ann Polka, president of the Right to Life group in Belleville.

Anti-abortion activists planned to rally in support of the bill Wednesday on the Capitol grounds. Several state and national speakers were scheduled, including Felicia Goeken of Alton, director of the Illinois Right to Life. Buses were planned to bring people from Alton, Belleville, Lake County and Galesburg.

Under the proposal, doctors would face penalties of up to a year in jail if they don't provide a patient with a list of public and private pregnancy and adoption services and pictures of a fetus whose growth is similar to the one to be aborted.

Doctors also would have to tell women that the father is responsible for child support and that an abortion could have physical and emotional side effects.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Tom McCracken, R-Downers Grove, says doctors also could be criminally liable for causing a woman to suffer emotionally because she wasn't given alternative information or made aware of the risks.

Polka and others said the bill is opposed by Planned Parenthood and other pro-choice groups which feel it limits women's right to choose.

Similar bills have passed in Mississippi, North Dakota, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

know that we are not going to allow the governor and those who represent us in the General Assembly to stop thinking about the poor," Williams said.

The primary purpose of the trip was to present Edgar with some 2,000 disposable plates that were signed with kids' signatures. The plates were to represent hunger and joblessness caused by Edgar and the Legislature.

"Eventually, our babies and children will not have food to eat," said Mary Rhodes of East St. Louis, president of the National Black Child Development Institution.

The child development institution, the Metro East group, Project Clean Up and other welfare groups organized the Springfield visit and collected the plates.

Generally, the protesters said they oppose cuts to welfare that give poor people general assistance money for only nine months. They also oppose bills like the one to stop giving public aid to recipients who have another baby.

Those who rallied outside Edgar's office included Alice Meredith of Venice, who said her grandson, Frederick, hasn't received adequate care because Medicare rules require him to pay too many of his own bills.

Frederick has diabetes and was admitted to the hospital recently as a result of his illness. Alice said she doesn't know how she will cover all her grandson's bills.

Another spectator was Lester Shumpert of East St. Louis, who came because he can't find a job and stopped getting state general assistance money last month.

"There are no jobs to be found," said Shumpert, who brought his two kids to help him protest.

Shumpert said he knows of many others struggling after losing general assistance and many in worse shape because they have no education or just got out of prison.

"We're not begging for hand-outs," said O.V. Carter, founder of Project Clean Up, which works to stop drug and alcohol abuse. "All we want is jobs. We wouldn't need to be here if people had jobs."

Edgar never greeted the protesters, but an aide received the plates and placed them in Edgar's office.

Victims also deserve rights

Everyone is familiar with the rights of the accused. The right to a fair trial with a jury of peers, the right to qualified counsel, the right to appeal court decisions.

But how many are aware of the constitutional rights of crime victims?

Crime victims have no rights clearly defined in the state constitution. State statutes provide protection for those affected by criminal action, but a constitutional amendment would ensure that the robbed, assaulted or otherwise victimized have their rights protected.

The issue is an easy one for those who have never been crime victims to dismiss or put in the back of their minds. But for those who have known the trauma, the crime is never forgotten.

Making the public aware is important now because, in order for the amendment to be considered for a statewide vote in November, both houses of the General Assembly must act by May 3.

The amendment was proposed by state Attorney General Roland Burris and has the support of crime victim organizations throughout the state, the state's attorneys' association and other law enforcement organizations. Voters in six other states have voted to add victims' rights to their constitutions.

The 20th anniversary of National Crime Victims' Rights Week will be held April 26 through May 2. It is co-sponsored by organizations including the American Association of Retired Persons, Mothers Against Drunk Driving, National Crime Prevention Council, and 15 other law enforcement, rights and assistance groups.

House Joint Resolution — Constitutional Amendment 28 is sponsored locally by U.S. Rep. D. Carby, and Jay Hoffman, D-Collinsville. It needs the vocal support of all state residents, who should write their senators and representatives asking for quick action.

Justice is only served by fair and impartial proceedings. Not including the victims in unfair.

Excessive cost hikes for prescription drugs

(Opinion by U.S. Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Springfield, Ill.)

Imagine an elderly woman, with a chronic illness that requires regular prescription medication, reaching the end of the month and the end of her prescription drugs that the average Canadian, and 54 percent more than the average European, for the same medications, produced by the same companies.

In an attempt to get prescription drug prices under control, I have sponsored a bill that would reduce the value of an existing tax credit taken by most drug companies, if they increase drug prices in excess of inflation.

I think providing an incentive to encourage drug companies to hold down price increases is a sensible approach to the problem of escalating prescription drug costs.

This bill will not put drug companies out of business. In 1990, when the average profit as a percentage of sales for all industries was 4.1 percent, pharmaceutical companies had profits of 13.6 percent — more than three times as much.

Many drug manufacturers claim that high drug prices are due to the research and development of new pharmaceutical products.

But a recent Senate report found that the highest prescription drug price inflation occurs on drugs that have been on the market for many years, for which research and development costs have long since been recovered.

For example, Tylenol with codeine, a widely used pain killer, has been on the market since 1977, but has gone up in price 128 percent since 1985. This average yearly increase of 16 percent occurred even though its manufacturer has not brought a new drug to the market in the last five years.

Specifically, the bill I am sponsoring would limit access to a tax credit that is available to all companies which invest in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and other U.S. possessions.

For each percentage point by which a company's price increase exceeds the Consumer Price Index for the year, the portion of the tax credit, above and beyond the amount that is devoted to wages paid in the U.S. possessions, would be reduced by 20 percent.

However, the bill does not change the research and development tax credits which are available to drug companies that are searching for new medicines to cure diseases.

The bill would also establish a Prescription Drug Policy Review Commission to analyze trends in national and international prescription drug prices, evaluate cost-containment incentive programs, and make policy recommendations.

The commission would also study the feasibility of establishing a drug price review board in the United States, modeled after similar boards in other countries that help hold the line on drug prices.

The first $200 million per year saved by this bill would go to a trust fund to pay for a 15-state Medicare outpatient drug demonstration program. Any additional savings would go to deficit reduction.

This proposal is a positive step toward more comprehensive reform of our health care system.

It is important that we move ahead with this bill, which would bring prescription drug costs under control, as part of an overall health reform package.

Downstate key arena for Braun, Williamson

Our guest

(The following opinion piece was written by Robert Estill of Copley News Service.)

Carol Moseley Braun won the Democratic nomination for the Senate on the strength of Cook County Democrats and Republican women in the Chicago suburbs. But downstate voters may determine the outcome in her fall match with Republican rival Rich Williamson.

Downstate is no longer solid Republican turf, as evidenced by a decade of Democratic victories at the legislative and congressional levels and the strong showing that Sen. Alan Dixon, the Belleville Democrat who lost to Braun, made in prior elections.

As Chicago lawyers, both Braun and Williamson share a drawback among downstaters who historically have looked suspiciously upon "Windy City" contenders.

Braun has a stronger identification with Chicago politics than Williamson, who is making his first bid for elected office.

Currently the Cook County recorder of deeds, she served 10 years in the state Legislature and was floor leader for the late Chicago Mayor Harold Washington.

As a black woman, Braun can draw support from those who would like to see her become the first black woman elected to the U.S. Senate, but she also has to win over those with a racial or gender bias.

"I think she is going to win over a lot of skeptics," said Sen. Paul Simon, D-Illinois. "There are some who are concerned about the issue of race. Prejudice is not dead in Illinois. I wish it were."

Simon added that racism is not confined to downstate. A veteran of statewide campaigns, Simon worked vigorously for the renomination of Dixon, his longtime ally. After Dixon lost, Simon offered his aid to Braun, and she has indicated she welcomes it.

"I think Carol has a real chance of winning," Simon said. "She just has to work real hard downstate and expose her personality to the people downstate."

Simon also noted that Attorney General Roland Burris, a Democrat elected three times as the state's controller before he was elected to his current post in 1990, is evidence that a black candidate can win statewide.

The record of women in Senate races in Illinois is not encouraging. Dixon took 65 percent of the vote in 1986 against State Rep. Judy Koehler, a little-known, underfunded conservative who was not expected to do well.

But Simon captured the same percentage in 1990 against then U.S. Rep. Lynn Martin, who had been considered a viable contender at the outset.

"Lynn Martin was a different woman," said Gerald Austin, a campaign consultant to Braun. "Lynn Martin came off as angry."

But Braun is "very charming" and good at winning over audiences, said Austin, who managed Jesse Jackson's unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1988.

The importance of downstate voters is not lost on Braun, who stressed during a visit to supporters and potential donors in the nation's capital that she intends to campaign vigorously downstate.

"I want to give people a sense of security that I intend to be the representative of the entire state of Illinois," Braun told reporters. "I do intend to have a presence. I do intend to be visible."

Meanwhile, Simon rates favorably in Time magazine's review of possible vice presidential choices if Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton wins the Democratic presidential nomination.

The magazine said Simon, an unsuccessful contender for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination, is a "popular big-state senator with small-town sincerity who appeals to independents."

His drawback, the magazine said, is that he is "too liberal."

Simon said he has not had any conversations with Clinton or anyone from the Clinton organization about the vice presidency and declined to say how he would respond if he were approached for the second spot on the ticket.

Abuse of alcohol costly to Illinois

TO THE EDITOR:

All of us have heard and talked about the war on drugs in Illinois.

We've heard about cocaine seizures, increased penalties for marijuana usage, the problem of "crack" and the resurgence of LSD. But we don't hear much about the number one drug of choice among our youths in Illinois — alcohol.

Approximately 51 percent of junior high and high school students use alcohol, according to a report released by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Of those, 75 percent use it weekly and 28 percent "binge" (five or more drinks in a row) at least monthly.

The binge drinkers average more than 13 beers per week. The result of such heavy drinking is a disturbing statistic: 50 percent of the deaths among 15 to 24-year-olds are attributed to alcohol.

As in most cases, children learn from adults. By 1995, alcohol-dependent adults will number 1.2 million.

Until parents stop misusing alcohol and begin setting positive examples, children will continue to mimic their bad behavior.

Research shows that as many as 10.5 million Americans show signs of alcoholism or alcohol dependence.

Alcoholism and related problems cost the nation an estimated $85.8 billion in 1988, $27.5 billion more than illicit use of drugs.

In Illinois, our costs in lost productivity and mortality losses amount to $6.5 billion a year. Treatment costs alone for alcohol dependency amount to $760 million.

Our heart disease and cancer cause more deaths than alcohol-related problems.

Many Americans have modified their diet and their behavior to prevent these diseases. They now must turn their attention toward alcohol and its effects on their health.

April is Alcohol Awareness Month in Illinois. Throughout this month, you will hear and read much about the problems resulting from the abuse of alcohol.

I encourage you to become familiar with the dangerous effects of alcohol abuse. It's my hope that parents across the state will take the time to discuss this with their children.

But we don't hear much of the attention, but alcohol takes more lives.

Lieutenant governor

Says BAC ignores a responsibility

TO THE EDITOR:

Guided by Belleville Area College President Joe Cipri, last month the board raised the tuition by $2 per semester hour.

This month they extended the "one-time" tax increase for the third consecutive year. By taking advantage of a protection, health and safety tax provision, they are able to levy taxes for capital improvements without voter approval.

This allows dollars which should be used for capital improvements to be diverted to increasing employee compensation.

Many of the students are financially strapped, and the median family income of the district's residents is under $30,000.

Yet, over one-half of the full-time faculty earnings average over $83,000. These figures will be negotiated upward this year.

It is no more than a redistribution of the wealth from the less affluent to the more affluent Robin Hood scenario in reverse.

It is also a concern that, while BAC is economically pampering some employees, it exploits others.

Such exploitation has the effect of bringing down several of our expense ratios to below the state average and thus allows the administration and board to flatter itself while ignoring how the favorable ratios were achieved.

School administrations and boards must set a sterling example for the public to emulate.

At BAC, we ignore that responsibility.

BAC board member

Kids give them something to talk about

4 years later, Lamaze class stays in touch

By John J. Winkelman
Staff writer

Proud parents always have something to talk about. Just ask them about their kids.

In October 1987 the couples in a St. Elizabeth Medical Center Lamaze class decided they would get together after their children were born. Group members said they always have something they like to talk about and its something they all have in common: 4-year-olds.

"At the end of the class we had a party and we decided it would be fun to get together," said Marsha DeGonia, of Granite City. "I called the nurse/teacher and said be sure to give me the numbers."

So DeGonia called the couples who were in the class and the group decided to meet in March 1988, one month after the last baby was born. Now going on five years since they first met, the couples still get together regularly.

Most recently the couples and kids had an egg hunt at the DeGonia house the weekend before Easter. They have also gone to the zoo together, gone apple knocking, pumpkin hunting and carving, and attended Sesame Street Live as a group, DeGonia said.

"We try to get together every other month or so at another's houses," said Lynette Stueber of Columbia. "We all have so much in common. We always have something to talk about."

The parents also decided to get babysitters one night and have an adults only get together, but like most proud parents they still couldn't find much to talk about except their kids.

"We decided to get together without the little ones and we were like 'what are we going to talk about?' As usual we always talked about the kids," DeGonia said.

The children also seem to like the company of people their age.

"We try to keep each other informed — like when the 'Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles' were at McDonald's. When one sees something the others might have missed we'll be sure to call," DeGonia said.

In addition to finding and sharing information, the group also is an outlet for the parents because they are able to talk to someone who has a similar experience.

"We are always there for one another," DeGonia said. "We're a real support group for each other."

Stueber said the families, all of which include two children now, haven't made any specific plans for summer activities, but she said the moms and kids will probably get together for picnics and other summer fun activities.

The dads also have taken time together, DeGonia said; the men all went to a Blues hockey game. More than likely they talked about their kids as much as the game.

"One of the guys races go-karts and my husband is a chemist and develops oil additives. Dave said he always talks about what oils to put in his cars," DeGonia said.

The families in the group include David and Marsha, Brent, 7, and Brittney, 4, DeGonia; Jim and Lynette, Rachel, 4, and Megan Stueber; Angela and Daryl, Dustin, 4, and Jamie, 8 months, Harris of Mulberry Grove; and Kathy and John, Jennifer, 4, and John, 2, Ritchie.

"We are always there for one another," DeGonia said. "We're a real support group for each other."

own groups.

"What's happened is we have formed really good friendships because you have someone to talk to," Ritchie said. "In the beginning it was much more formal, but now it is more casual. Even in Lamaze class we didn't really click. It wasn't until we all had something in common."

DeGonia said she certainly recommended a support group.

"It's a real exciting time of your life, but all the people there are shy and they probably don't think about getting together again," DeGonia said. "It's kind of therapy for us."

YOUTH FOCUS: How do your parents feel about you driving?

(Asked of students at Madison High School and Venice High School.)

Cindy C. Kostecki, Madison High School

"My mother thinks that I should start saving money now, so that when my time comes I'll be able to pay for insurance on the car. She says no insurance — no car."

Delphine Gladney, Venice High School

"My parents' feelings are neutral about my driving privileges, as long as they're not using the car."

Antonio Cotton, Madison High School

"My parents and I have come to an agreement. When I get my drivers license, I will be able to take the car when I need it, but I have to put gas back in it. Keep it clean, and always tell them where I'm going so they'll know where to reach me if needed. I think my parents feel comfortable with me driving the car because I show them as much responsibility as I can."

Emil Allen, Madison High School

"My mother hates when I drive because she said I go too fast and the music is too loud. She said I don't stop completely at the stop signs. And I don't look where I'm going."

Nicole Holloway, Venice High School

"My mother has no objections about me driving the car. She knows that I am a very careful driver and wouldn't do anything lightheaded. She lets me use the car whenever I want as long as she is not occupying it."

David Fulley, Madison High School

"My parents don't let me drive unless I get a job, buy my own car, and have insurance. Otherwise, I don't drive."

Carlissa Ware, Venice High School

"My parents really didn't like me driving, because I drive a little too fast. Every time I ask for the car they make up some kind of excuse, but now I get it very often."

Andre Brown, Madison High School

"My mother thinks that I'm too irresponsible to be let on the road, and that if I am on the road it won't be in her car anyway. She is going to make me buy my own."

Jurea Melton, Venice High School

"My parents feel good about me driving the car. I go wherever I want and whenever I want. My mother's only concern is my wrecking the car. I'm a good driver, so they know I'm straight!"

Dave Martin, Venice High School

"My parents don't really want me to drive; I guess that they don't trust me. They think that I will immediately go out and act crazy and get myself killed. I'll just have to build up their trust."

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes an employment contract will contain a provision which attempts to restrict employees from competing with their employer when the employment is terminated. These so-called "restrictive covenants" are used primarily in service occupations where there is a threat that the former employee will use the employer's customer lists, trade secrets or other confidential information. These interests often conflict with the employee's right to pursue his customary occupation.

In Illinois, restrictive covenants are valid when they are reasonable as to time and territory, and the covenant is reasonably necessary to protect the interest of the employer. However, since restrictive covenants are a restraint of trade, they are disallowed by the Courts. The Courts will enforce only such provisions as are reasonably necessary to prevent improper and unfair competition. A recent case will help illustrate the facts and circumstances upon which the Court's decision will turn.

In 1984, a doctor entered into an employment contract with a medical corporation. A restrictive covenant contained in the contract provided that in the event the doctor left his employment, he would not compete with his employer for a period of three years nor in the counties where his employer was operating. The contract also provided that the covenant could be released by the doctor paying to the employer the sum of $50,000.

In 1985, immediately after the doctor terminated his employment, he set up a competing practice in the same county where his former employer was practicing medicine. The doctor argued that the covenant was void and unenforceable because it placed an unreasonable geographic restriction upon his practice of medicine. However, the Court noted that the doctor did not innocently open his own practice in an area in which he was unaware that his former employer was operating. On the contrary, he started a practice in direct violation of the covenant. The Court therefore refused to void the restrictive covenant.

It should also be noted that the doctor in this case had obtained patient lists and other confidential information during his former employment. Sometimes the contract contains a restrictive covenant which prevents the employee from practicing his trade at all for an indefinite period of time. Such covenants will most likely be voided by the Court. However, if the geographic area, stated in the contract is simply too large, the Court may, in effect, rewrite the contract and limit the covenant to a smaller area.

•Eticam

"We want this," and then stand there and wait for it... I don't believe this is provided for in the statute," Cruse said.

Andria said she filed an FOI request for documents pertaining to Eticam on March 27.

When she returned to pick up the information April 6, she was not allowed to make the copies herself, and the staff person who did the reproduction made two copies of each document, one for Andria and one for the city attorney staff.

She said the double-duplication was an infringement on her rights.

She also said a charge of 20 cents per copy is "unreasonable," considering the fact that she requested the information "in the interest of the health, welfare and safety" of city residents.

Andria requested a waiver of the fee April 9. She claimed that the press is not usually charged for documents, and that therefore the city had set precedent and her waiver request was justified.

An April 16 letter to Andria from City Clerk and FOI officer Bob Stevens states that, because of the imminent request for information by Andria personally and "there has been no showing of any purpose for the benefit of public health, safety and welfare," the request for a fee waiver was denied.

As of April 16, the city had provided Andria with 124 pages.

Other copies were being made, but will not be given to Andria until she remits a balance of $24.80, the letter says.

Andria, who insists she has "no political agenda," has also requested copies of videotapes taken at a meeting about Eticam April 6 and at an Eticam facility in Fernley, Nev., April 8-10.

She said Assistant City Attorney Susan Bacon determined that the tape is exempt under the statute and refused her access to the raw tape, currently being edited for a future broadcast on the local community access cable television station.

"If there is nothing secret, then let there be freedom of information," Andria said.

But Bacon said the city has not yet determined whether the tapes are exempt from disclosure under the provisions of the statute.

"We don't want to withhold any information about Eticam," Bacon said. "But the tapes are currently being used by the city, and time is a factor."

Home construction booming in county

A mild winter and low interest rates are sparking a home building boom in some parts of Madison County — especially the Edwardsville and Alton areas.

"It's just going crazy right now," Edwardsville City Planner Frank Miles said.

"Interest rates must have helped pushed them (permit requests) up, along with the mild weather," said Joe Pariente, Madison County building administrator.

"Alton has more potential for growth right now than it has had for several years," said Don Peters, city building and code inspector.

Ted Prehn, a project coordinator of the Adams Cos. in Alton, said the demand for housing in the area had been strong despite a staggering economy.

"Development on this side of the river is fantastic," Prehn said. "Interest rates are down, and people with money to spend are looking for newer things. The ones we see buying today are taking advantage of the rates by selling their existing homes and moving up."

—Edwardsville, a good housing market even in bad years, is booming with new homes.

The city issued 22 housing permits, with a total estimated construction value of $2.6 million, in the three months ending Feb. 29. For the same period the previous year, seven permits with an estimated value of $972,000 were issued.

Madison County issued 220 building permits in December, January and February, twice as many as in the three-month period of a year earlier.

Of the 220 permits, 34 were in Godfrey, more than any other township. Total estimated value of the projects was $1,642,412 and included 17 permits for new homes.

Alton issued only four new home permits in the three months ending Feb. 29. That is still double the number for a similar period a year earlier, Peters said.

And, Alton is having a boom in its rehab market, he said. The current rates and mild weather are helping a market already under the positive influence of new highway construction, cheap land and other attractions, officials said.

Both Edwardsville and Alton have found that the gap between Missouri and Illinois is narrowing, judging from St. Louisans finding homes in this area.

"People in North County are beginning to realize how close Alton is to St. Louis and how easy it is to commute," said Prehn.

Four of the eight homes in the Hopp Hollow development off Illinois Route 67 in Alton have been sold to Missouri residents, according to developer Ed McPike.

Edwardsville has seen a similar surge from people across the river.

"We've been attracting a lot of folks from West County and South County," City Planner Miles said.

"We plan to do some billboard advertising in those areas so we can keep them coming."

Prehn said property values add to Illinois' attractiveness.

"Depending on the development, you can get 10 to 20 percent more value for your money on this side of the river," Prehn said.

"You may spend as much as $80,000 for a postage-stamp size lot in Chesterfield when you can get a half-acre over here for $40,000."

reduced overtime — while increasing production levels," Doerr said.

Doerr urged employees to continue efforts to reduce costs and improve productivity.

He said that controlled costs and anticipated economic improvement should allow National Steel to earn a small net profit in 1992.

Kokichi Hagiwara, National Steel's chairman and chief executive officer, said it was important to note that the loss reduction came despite an increase of $1.4 million in financing costs since last year and despite a 50-cent an hour wage increase that became effective Jan. 1.

The automobile industry, which makes up National Steel's largest market segment, still hasn't recovered from last year's recession, Hagiwara said.

He said that this and the fact that other markets have remained "soft" have kept steel prices down.

"On the average, prices today are little different than they were 10 years ago, despite the significant improvements made in product quality during that period."

National Steel reported first-quarter sales this year of $564.1 million, about 7 percent more than a year ago.

In the first quarter of 1992, the corporation shipped 1,211,000 tons of steel and produced 1,336,000 tons of raw steel. The corresponding figures for 1991 were 1,110,000 tons shipped and 1,206,000 tons produced.

"I'm proud of the Granite City community that contributed to this renovation, and I'm proud of the Phoenix Crisis Center board of directors. This home is made for families, and we are all in debt to the contributors."

"We're able to have a better atmosphere to our clients. It's the first home of peace for some of them," Chiappa said.

"We still maintained 24-hour service to women during the renovation. But now we can offer them a home to be proud of."

—Carol Lee Chiappa, director

"We're very proud of those groups that were able to donate money and time."

Many dollars, much dedication and countless hours of labor were provided by individuals and organizations. Among the groups helping were the Granite City Business and Professional Women, the Collinsville Business and Professional Women and the O'Fallon Youth Group.

Chiappa gave special thanks to Val-Mart for its monetary donation.

"Their assistance has helped us finish the offices, bathrooms, kitchen and living quarters," she said. "Many other donations also were received. We are always in need of the community's continuing support."

Unchanged is the center's theme of "new beginnings."

"The 'new beginnings' look of the building will serve as an added incentive for every client to start a 'new beginnings' life," Chiappa said.

It's a field day for animators, says director of 'FernGully'

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

There's a boom going on in Hollywood, but it's not in the realm of big-budget action movies with stars who get millions of dollars to lend their names to the marquee.

The explosion is in the field of animated movie making, says former Disney animator Bill Kroyer, director of the socially conscious new animated feature

"FernGully ... The Last Rainforest."

Kroyer says there isn't one animator in Hollywood who is out of work. There has never been a greater demand for talented animators with a good sense of story and, to some extent, a talent for acting, he says.

Kroyer says the latter trait is needed more than most people think, because the animator must be able to successfully predict what a character is going to do next and how that action should look.

"FernGully ... The Last Rain Forest" is based on the stories of "FernGully," by Australian author Diana Young, who began writing stories for her three children in 1975 while living on the Greek island of Mykonos.

"FernGully" has given us the chance to return to the art of original story telling and the animation traditions of magic, myth and fairy tales," Kroyer says.

Kroyer, who trained at Disney studios in classic, hand-drawn animation, was nominated for an Academy Award in 1989 for his short film "Technological Threat." He is recognized as a pioneer in combining computer technology with classic animation and is president of Kroyer Films in Los Angeles. His wife, Sue, was an animator and coordinating art director for "FernGully."

"We wanted to affect people's consciousness with this movie," Kroyer says. "We didn't want to get preachy about saving the rainforests, but we felt that having the images of the beauty and wonder of the rainforest out front was step one in bringing about change.

"However, we didn't want to give people the idea we had some solution to the rainforest problem. What we wanted to do was to take people on an adventure that was magic and exciting. Through that, we wanted people to recognize we are all part of a bigger world."

"Everything we do affects the people we love and the people they come into contact with. It's a message you can take with you if you live in the rainforest, in the Arctic or the middle of the city."

One of the great appeals of "FernGully ... The Last Rainforest" is a comic vocal characterization by Robin Williams of a bat named Batty Koda.

"He ad-libbed a huge amount of what he does in the film," Kroyer says of Williams' work. "He really got into the character. Robin actually started to believe he was a bat. He would talk about his wings. He would talk about eating figs. He was a pleasure to work with."

"We went into the studio with a seven-minute part for him. We ended up recording 14 hours of material from Robin. And every bit of it was a riot. But that left us with the horrible task of having to edit out over 13 hours of it, but it was worth it. Robin was spectacular."

Director Kroyer faced a major challenge at the outset of "FernGully." Having a company with only 15 employees, he would have to make contracts with more than 100 animators and technicians to produce the film.

"To our advantage," Kroyer says, "the story seemed to have the same effect on everybody. Virtually every artist we approached found a way to get involved."

Soon Kroyer had 110 employees in Los Angeles alone, with an additional 60 people spread among Toronto, London, Copenhagen and Korea. "FernGully" became the work of an international team assembled virtually from scratch.

Marshall drops appeal

Will serve suspension from school, games

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

What threatened to become a bitter battle was quickly settled yesterday in the Third Circuit Court of Madison County.

Senior Drake Marshall, granted a temporary restraining order Tuesday after he was suspended from school by Granite City School District 9, signed a national letter of intent to play baseball at Southwest Missouri State University that afternoon.

That, Marshall believed, freed him from the need of court protection. He feared the suspension could endanger the scholarship and his graduation next month.

His attorney, Richard Cain of Collinsville, dropped the case Wednesday before a hearing which had been scheduled for 10 a.m. Marshall will now serve the five-day suspension and return to school next Tuesday. He will also miss eight playing dates, starting with Tuesday's win over East St. Louis.

"Everything worked out just

'Everything worked out just like we wanted. The biggest thing was the scholarship...justice was served.'

like we wanted," said Don Marshall, Drake's father. "Our biggest concern was the scholarship. Allowing us to sign showed us that (SMSU) believed Drake was innocent."

Marshall was accused of vandalism to a car in the high school parking lot April 11. Marshall and junior pitcher Brent Dippel, who was also involved in the incident, received identical suspensions Monday. No police charges were filed.

Dippel did not appeal his suspension. Marshall, who claimed he wasn't given an opportunity to present his case to the school board, challenged his suspension Tuesday and was granted a temporary restraining order by Circuit Court Judge P.J. O'Neill.

"We just wanted to present a defense and the school board wouldn't give us that chance," Don Marshall said. "That's when we decided to get an attorney. It was only fair."

William Schooley, attorney for the school district, could not be reached for comment Wednesday. Athletic director Greg Patton and baseball coach Bob Stegmeyer, though declining to comment directly on the matter, both said they were glad to see the situation resolved.

Signing the letter with SMSU on Tuesday led to Wednesday's decision to drop the matter. "We didn't plan it that way," Don Marshall said. "But it all worked out for the best. We plan on putting this issue behind us. Justice was served."

Scram, distractions; round robin is here

It hasn't been an easy season so far for the Warrior baseball team, but it's far from a lost cause.

Injuries, rainouts, suspended games and suspended players have been almost as prevalent as pure baseball. For various reasons, seven of the 22 varsity players have been unable to play in at least one game this year.

"We've kind of been like the (injury-plagued) Cardinals so far," said Warrior coach Bob Stegmeyer.

Any one or more of the above factors will or could be in evidence this weekend at the Granite City Round Robin Tournament. But let's hope good baseball is the overriding factor.

Hillsboro, Dupo and Edwardsville join the Warriors tomorrow and Saturday at Varsity Field. The schedule is as follows:

Friday
Edwardsville vs. Dupo, 4:30 p.m.; Granite City vs. Hillsboro, 7 p.m.

Saturday
Granite City vs. Dupo, 10 a.m.; Edwardsville vs. Hillsboro, 12:30 p.m.; Dupo vs. Hillsboro, 3 p.m.; Granite City vs. Edwardsville, 5:30 p.m.

The Warriors likely won't have many (if any) seniors in uniform Friday since the Senior Prom is at the same time. Playing the 4:30 game might have made a difference, but probably not.

"I doubt they could play a 4:30 game and have time to get ready for the prom," said Stegmeyer. "We always play the night game on Friday so the players can play under the lights and more of the parents can come out."

The Warriors will be right back at it Saturday morning, and hopefully none of the seniors will have done anything foolish on Friday night and are ready to play.

Dupo has been a big disappointment this year, with a 1-6 record as of Wednesday. The Tigers finished second in the state Class A tournament two years ago, but have one of the better pitchers in the area in senior right-hander Cole Proffer. He pitched a no-hitter for Dupo's only win this season.

The big game will be the Warriors and Edwardsville to round out the tournament. Brent Dippel and Edwardsville's Joe Blasingmire hooked up in a memorable pitching duel in last year's tournament. Dippel, then just a sophomore, pitched a two-hitter. But Blasingmire fired a no-hitter and won 1-0 to keep alive a Tiger winning streak which eventually reached a state record 64.

Junior Ben Hicks (2-0) is the Warriors' top starter right now. He is the likely pitcher against the Tigers (6-3). Granite City can expect to see Edwardsville ace Jason Boyd on the hill.

Hot Saturday Nights

Tri-City Speedway opens season this week

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

The weather might not actually be that warm, but this weekend will be the first of many "Hot Saturday Nights" in Granite City this year.

Tri-City Speedway opens its first season under the new ownership of long-time racing promoter Bob Wente.

"Taking weather and everything else into consideration, we expect to have a full house Saturday," said Wente. "There is a lot of enthusiasm being generated both here and from outside the area for Tri-City Speedway."

"We want to do what we can to make the track as attractive as possible."

— Bob Wente

Wente said he has 65 drivers already committed to race in the Saturday night program, which he has dubbed "Hot Saturday Nights," that continues through Sept. 12.

"I think we can have between 90 and 100 cars here," he said. "The prize money is attractive, and the drivers have known me long enough to know that the money is solid."

Area drivers include Steve Gartner of Edwardsville and Dave Jones of Alton, the 1990 track champion. Missouri state champion Jim Durbin is also expected along with local favorite Kevin Gundaker of St. Charles, Mo.

Wente has sponsorship from Clark Oil and Coca-Cola (Mello Yello), and he feels the ticket prices are attractive. Adults pay $8.50, children ages 6-12 pay $3 and children under 6 are free.

Tri-City Speedway owner Bob Wente stands by the sign at the entrance on Illinois 203 just south of I-270.

There is also a family package (two adults and two children) for $19. The top 10 rows are reserved seats.

"We're targeting new fans," said Wente. "For the kind of racing we have I think Tri-City Speedway is one of the top ten tracks in the country. People would be surprised at the recognition we get on a national level."

On almost any motorsports report you will hear the results from here.

Wente's top priority is to increase the seating capacity from the present 4,000 to between 6,000 and 8,000.

"That turns into more restrooms and concessions, of

Warrior rally clips Flyers

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

Amidst some confusion and uncertainty, the Warrior baseball team showed plenty of character Tuesday.

Granite City bounced back strong for an 8-5 win over the East St. Louis Flyers at Varsity Field. The Warriors got their first Southwestern Conference win (1-1) and are 7-3 overall. The Flyers fell to 1-3, 5-4.

Catcher Jeff Luffman carried the biggest bat with a three-run homer in a five-run third inning and a clinching two-run single in the three-run sixth. Bill Herman broke a 5-5 tie with an RBI single off East St. Louis starter and loser Larry Hawkins.

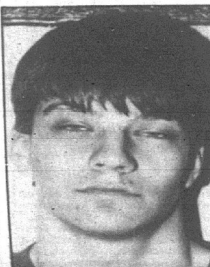

"It's impressive to see how we hit up and down the lineup," said Warrior coach Bob Stegmeyer. "We struggled a little bit last week because there were a lot of things coming up."

It was spring break and the team was anticipating disciplinary action against two key players, senior Drake Marshall and junior Brent Dippel. Both were given five-day school suspensions Tuesday and they also will miss eight playing dates. Both actions took effect Tuesday, although Marshall got a temporary restraining order to at least delay his suspension (see related story).

"We had a half-hour meeting about that (Monday night)," said Stegmeyer. "We told them there are no one or two players we absolutely have to have to win. These players will be welcomed back with open arms when the time comes, but this can be a pretty good team right now as it is."

Starter Ben Hicks lost his control and walked five in the third inning as the Flyers jumped to a 4-0 lead. Catcher Chris Moore had an RBI single and Shane Staten had a two-run single. Still, Hicks fanned six in his 2 1/2 innings.

Brett Barron allowed one run in 1 1/2 innings, then sophomore Chad Dooley was marvelous in

Rowden grand marshal of area Senior Olympics

By David Wilhelm
Staff writer

For Collinsville High soccer coach Ron Rowden, recognition for leading the Kahoks to last season's state championship continues to roll in.

Rowden, 27, a native of Granite City, has been named grand marshal for this year's Southwestern Illinois Regional Senior Olympics, to be held next month at SIUE. The announcement was made last week by the Southwestern Illinois Regional Senior Olympics Steering Committee.

"Ed True (committee member) talked to me about it," said Rowden. "They wanted someone who had accomplished something over the past year. Last year, they had (Edwardsville High baseball coach) Tom Pile, and this year it's me."

"This is a big honor for my players and me. It's a culmination of working hard to get to this point."

Rowden has been the soccer coach at Collinsville for three years. He has a 54-14-7 record. The Kahoks were ranked 16th in USA Today's final poll in 1991. The Senior Olympics' grand march and opening ceremonies are scheduled for May 8 at the SIUE track, located near Bluff Road.

"I'll be at the opening ceremonies," said Rowden. "I'll say a few introductory words and get the games going. I'm the greatest about it. It's great that older people (over 55) still participate in athletics. It's unbelievable that they're able to successfully compete at that age."

Rowden is the youngest high school varsity coach to win a state soccer championship. In addition to his coaching duties, Rowden has been involved in soccer camps for young people, and has served as an evaluator with the Olympic Development Program.

This year's Senior Olympics program will include competition in basketball, softball, volleyball, horseshoes, discus throw, fly casting, golf putting, bowling, tennis, billiards, table tennis, dance and swimming, in addition to numerous track and field events. Deadline for registration is Friday.
